BINDING INFORMATION FOR IP MEDIA FLOWS
ABSTRACT

A binding mechanism uses an authorization token and packet media flow identifier(s) to identify packet media flow(s) of a session for authorization. This provides the advantages of using a per-session authorization token while also allowing resource authorization and allocation on the basis of individual packet media flows of the session. The binding mechanism includes various aspects.